Young People's Health Partnership

Young People face a range of health inequalities and are under-represented in health policy decision making. The Young People's Health Partnership represents the interests of young people and young adults aged 10–25. We focus specifically on young people facing health inequalities. We are an established partnership of six organisations with voluntary sector networks across England from the youth and young people's health sectors.

At a national and local level we

- support young people to exercise empowered and active voices
- support the youth and young people's health sectors to work in partnership with the health system
- provide advice on how policies and services can affect young people differently, particularly marginalised groups
- focus on young people's wellbeing and increasing understanding of effective prevention work
- increase understanding of good age appropriate care for young people and why it is important

Co-production & engagement

Our 'takeover' activities enable young people to inform health decision making.

Our takeover toolkit provides a framework for government departments, local authorities and CCGs to hold their own takeover activities.

Resources

We create resources to highlight issues for young people's health and wellbeing. These include briefing papers and evidence reviews on a range of topic areas.

All our resources can be found at www.youngpeopleshealth.org.uk/yphresources

Advice

We provide bespoke support and advice to the VCSE and policy leads based on young people's experience and good practice from our networks.
